

I do not feel that the power companies should be allowed to send high-speed data over their power grids. This might cause too much interference with essential, security information processes.